Recommendations

'Paul was the sound mixer on my documentary film Sir Chris Hoy: How To Win Gold. Paul became involved at an early stage of the project, his early involvement allowed us to shape the material in more creative and interesting ways than we might otherwise have attempted.....The final mix greatly helped the film to become a cohesive whole - dramatic yet natural, intense where it needed to be but light where it could be. In my opinion, it is excellent. From start to finish, Paul brought a genuine creativity and great care to the process - he is the sort of collaborator you hope to work with again.'

Colin Brown, Producer/Director 'Chris Hoy: How to Win Gold'

'I've worked with Paul across two series of Bob Servant and a series of Mountain Goats and his work is of an exceptionally high standard. He takes great care and attention over everything he does, and consistently goes the extra mile in terms of delivering the highest possible standards. He's also a joy to work with, and a very easy man to get on with - in short, a brilliant dubbing mixer.'

Owen Bell, Producer 'Mountain Goats' and 'Bob Servant'.

Additional Information

Paul was the recipient of a Royal Television Society Commendation Award for Professional Excellence in Craft in 2006, and also served as a judge for the RTS NE & Border region's post production awards in 2005.

Nominated for RTS Scotland Award for Best Sound in 2015 and 2016
